On DVD from Monday 26th Jan. 2015

Fast Sell:

This eerie and atmospheric possession chiller contains as much edge-of-the-seat excitement as recent supernatural shockers such as The Last Exorcism, The Possession and Deliver Us From Evil, resulting in the perfect Saturday-night scare flick.

When a religious cult's dark prophecy comes true, a sacrifice is suggested. Arguments follow, arguments that lead to a chain of violent, surprising and terrifying repercussions.

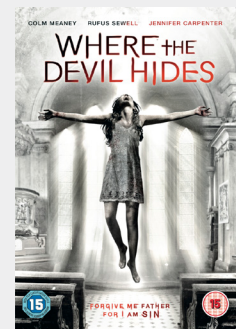

Key talent:

Colm Meaney (Con Air, Law Abiding Citizen)

Rufus Sewell (Dark City, The Illusionist)

Jennifer Carpenter (Quarantine, Dexter)

Alycia Debnam Carey (Into The Storm)

Synopsis:

When six baby girls are born on the sixth night of the sixth month, it spells doom for a religious cult who have prophesied that one of them will be the devil. Elder Beacon (Colm Meaney) resolves to kill the infants, but is stopped by one baby's father, Jacob (Rufus Sewell). 18 years later, on the eve of the prophecy's completion, someone starts killing the girls, one-by-one.

We like it because:

Like recent super-cool indie sleeper-hit The Sacrament, Where The Devil Hides revolves around a religious cult. Unlike that film, Where The Devil Hides' cast features some of cinema's most iconic actors - Colm Meaney, Rufus Sewell and Jennifer Carpenter, all turn-in career-best performances.

It's easy to see why they were attracted to the project, a combination of clever script and atmospheric direction results in a compelling watch.

Oh, and it has a shocking final few moments that stick in the memory long after the credits have finished rolling...

Hot Quotes:

"The body count in the film is fantastically high, between the girls dying off and the adults committing at least three acts of elaborate suicide...has all the elements of an exploitation movie—sexy Amish teens! A scythe slasher! Demonic visions! Mass hysteria from people who own pitchforks!" - The Dissolve
