Synopsis

Courtney (Shannyn Sossamon) and her twin boys, Zach and Dylan, have moved into a seemingly idyllic secluded old house in an attempt to start a new life. But the building has a secret: it is the scene of a gruesome ritualistic murder which bears a striking resemblance to a series of family slayings that have taken place over the past fifty years.

A private detective (James Ransone) investigating the recent massacre of a famous author and his family is led to Courtney and her children, whom he believes will be the next victims.

As he pieces together the mystery behind the murders he uncovers an ancient myth that means the killer might be someone – or something – more evil than anything he could have imagined.

We Like It Because

Following the malevolent supernatural forces of The Conjuring and Mama, Sinister II raises the bar for nerve-shredding terror, making this modern horror's darkest, scariest, and most disturbing franchise.

It also boasts one of cinema's truly terrifying monsters in the form of child-snatching demon, Bughuul, whose unsettling appearance and knack for creeping out of the shadows makes him the real stuff of nightmares.

With a script co-written by Scott Derrickson (Sinister, Deliver Us From Evil) and C. Robert Cargill (Sinister) and emerging horror talent Ciarán Foy directing, Sinister II brilliantly combines unsettling tension with jump-out-of-your-seat scares, creating an atmosphere of pure fear that builds to its shocking and blood-soaked climax.

After the huge success of Sinister, this sequel does the unthinkable in out-scaring the original – a head-twisting, heart-stopping horror that will push your appetite for fear to its very limit.

Will you dare to see it?
