Synopsis:

Welcome back to Martin Luther King Jr. High School! As an exciting new year begins we meet dedicated history teacher, Grace Wesley, and her grieving student, Brooke, who has just lost her brother. Upon learning of Brooke's recent tragedy, Grace offers her condolences and in the hope of relieving her pain, shares her faith in Christianity.

However, when Brooke later asks a question of religion in her history class, another student reports the incident to the school board. Interpreted as a breach of school and state policy, Grace suddenly faces an epic court case that may cost her not only her career, but may expel God from the classroom once and for all.

Featuring Melissa Joan Hart (TV's Sabrina the Teenage Witch), Ray Wise (X-Men: First Class, RoboCop) and Jesse Metcalfe (John Tucker Must Die, Desperate Housewives), God's Not Dead 2 is the highly anticipated sequel that brings love, loyalty and important questions of religion prominently to the fore.

We Like It Because:

Whether you're a believer or not, God's Not Dead 2 is certainly one that makes you think about religion, faith and where you stand with both. The film isn't afraid to take a very clear position and whether you're a Christian or not, there's no denying the passionate and unafraid attitude and filmmaking overall. A positive, modern and engaging expression of faith is at the heart and soul of God's Not Dead 2.
