We like it because:

It's fantastic to see two of Hollywood's greatest acting talents – Al Pacino and Anthony Hopkins – back to doing what they do best: delivering powerful, five-star performances.

And it's not just the Hollywood heavyweights who bring gravitas to the film. Josh Duhamel sets him apart as one of the industry's fastest rising stars, while Alice Eve proves she's amongst the very best of British talent.

With its intelligent and noir-like script, Misconduct brilliantly creates captivating characters who are embroiled in a complicated world of deceit and corporate greed.

As the twists and turns unravel, there are shades of Gone Girl, combined with punching power of sophisticated thrillers such as Wall Street and Glengarry Glen Ross.

Smart, slick, and utterly ruthless, Misconduct is corruption at its absolute best.
